About Lisa Swerling's Glass Cathedrals

Lisa Swerling is an artist making tiny worlds in artboxes called Glass Cathedrals. Inspired by the power of the miniature to communicate big ideas and emotions, she has spent nearly twenty years making thousands of artboxes – in Cape Town, California, and now London.

Glass Cathedrals have been shown in galleries, museums, art fairs and exotic locations around the world, from the Anthropologie Gallery in London, to San Francisco's epic Exploratorium Science Museum, at the Highgate & Hampstead Literary Festival and the beloved Telluride Film Festival.

Most recently tens of thousands of people in Paris, London, New York and Brussels have been introduced to Lisa's Glass Cathedrals at the touring exhibition Small is Beautiful – the world's biggest show of miniature art.

Described as "little pockets of joy", Glass Cathedrals remind us that we are all the heroes of our own stories, and that finding delight in small moments is a superpower we can turn on in the blink of an eye.

Ordering FAQ

Glass Cathedrals are miniature (1:87) multimedia scenes housed in painted wooden boxes, fronted by glass. Each Glass Cathedral is handmade by the artist, and individually titled, signed and dated.

Size: 12 x 8 x 3"

Editions: Glass Cathedrals are open editions, made to order.

Because each order is handmade, they may vary slightly from photos.

Display: Glass Cathedrals have a french cleat built into the top back of the frame.

They hang on a screw/nail or French cleat (provided) on the wall, or can sit on a shelf.

Returns: Because the artworks are custom made, we can't accept returns except if the order is incorrect or arrives damaged.

Each artwork comes with a charming and practical bespoke Glass Cathedrals kraft box.
